

Piccadilly Circus

Boasting over 80 restaurants and showcasing some of the city's finest and most authentic Asian cuisine, Chinatown has been a mainstay in London since the early 20th century. We invite you to savor our Char Sui pork, Peking duck, along with our handcrafted selection of dumplings and fried specialties.

Leicester City

Italians have settled in London since the Middle Ages in areas such as Clerkenwell and Soho, bringing with them everything from skilled craftsmanship, street entertainment, and ice cream. We celebrate the flavors of Italy with our extensive selection of antipasti, Artisan cold cuts and cheese, as well as authentic pizzas, calzones, and Cicchetti.

Tottenham Court Road

London's Pub culture is world renowned and although each has its own story, they are all social centers and often the focus of community life in their neighborhood. We celebrate this spirit with a selection of our favorite pub classics such as the "Sunday Roast", fish n chips, bangers and mash, traditional pies and more.

Brick Lane

This street in East London is home to Banglatown, the heart of the city's British Bengali population and famous for its curry houses. We bring these spices to life with our authentic fish and vegetable curries, homemade breads and chutneys, tandoori specialties, and one of Britain's favorites, chicken tikka masala.

Craft Beer

Beer in England has been brewed for hundred of years. Founded in 1845 in Chiswick, West London, Fuller's Brewery is an independent family owned business famous for its regional craft beers. We feature both Frontier, a crowd pleasing lager, as well as, London Pride an authentic amber ale.

Brixton

Located in South London, this multiethnic district is home to the city's largest population of Caribbean descent. West Indians first arrived in 1948 on the Empire Windrush, a cruise ship voyaging from Jamaica to London. We bring the flavor of the islands to life with our jerk, rice and peas, beef patties, and more...

Plymouth Bar

Located in Plymouth, which opens onto what is now Southside Street is the Black Friar Distillery, which has been operating since 1793. Gin has been a vital part of England's society since the 30 Years War in the 17th century, when English soldiers brought the knowledge of how to distill a juniper flavored spirit from Mainland Europe. One of the most iconic British inventions is the Gin & Tonic.

Borough

Located in Southwark, just south of the London Bridge, the Borough Market is one of the oldest and biggest markets in the city. Come experience street food at its best and see what the chefs are cooking up - the iconic chorizo roll, traditional paella, and gourmet cheeseburgers, this pop up station's menu changes weekly.

Pimm's Summer Cups

Pimm was a farmer's son from Kent who became the owner of an oyster bar in London, near the Bank of England. He offered the tonic (a gin-based drink containing a secret mixture of herbs and liqueurs) as an aid to digestion. Soon this beverage was mixed with lemonade and fruits and has been a Londoner favorite ever since.

Edgware Road

Spanning from Marble Arch in Northwest London through to Westminster, Edgware Road is home to the city's largest Middle Eastern quarter. Also known as "Little Beirut" it is famous for its Shawarma, kebabs, and Shisha. We feature a live charcoal grill serving a wide selection of Arabic specialties.

The Markets

From foodie havens to craft stalls and everything in between, London's markets are a must see for anyone touring the city. Featuring a British cheese monger, a fresh produce stall, and a nod to the largest seafood market in London, we've created a display of the finest and freshest products for you to enjoy.

Pudding Lane

English puddings have been famous for hundreds of years and we've selected our favorites for you to enjoy. Our 99's are retro, our toffee pudding is sticky, our Eton's a mess, and we've even included a trip to Ye Olde Sweet Shoppe for you to pick n mix your favorite treats. Make sure to save room...

Enjoy our new brunch experience, based on the many culinary centres of London.
