EMBARK ON AN ECOLOGICAL ADVENTURE IN AMELIA ISLAND

Discover the beauty of the barrier islands with The Ritz-Carlton, Amelia Island through a personally customized ecology field trip

AMELIA ISLAND, FL (February 2023) – Nestled in the northern corner of Florida, Amelia Island is a destination of unspoiled natural beauty ready to be explored. Leaders of luxury hospitality, The Ritz-Carlton, Amelia Island has curated thoughtful Ecology Field Trips, designed to connect and educate curious guests on the local area and wildlife. Surrounded by neighboring state parks, rivers and 13 miles of pristine barrier island beach, Amelia Island is a unique destination with its ability to immerse visitors in its several diverse ecosystems. With a menu of activities offering birding, seining in tidal pools, exploring living sand dunes and more, the program provides experiences designed for every age and is perfect for connecting guests with nature, year round.

Led by the resort's on-site expert naturalist, The Ecology Field Trip provides customized half or full day adventures for exploration and discovery built from seven unique course offerings, each focused on a different aspect of Amelia Island's natural environment.

Guests can learn more about the northern Florida coast in Barrier Island Ecology, which examines the gentle balance and interconnected nature of the dunes, ocean, rivers and marshes—important habitats for a diverse selection of species. For those looking to explore closer to the water's edge on the Beach and Tidal Pools field trip is an exciting opportunity to hunt for living treasures like sand dollars, ghost and hermit crabs, sea turtle nests, shells, and prehistoric shark teeth with seining nets. The Living Sand Dunes program also provides an exciting adventure along the Florida coast through the area's beautiful sand dunes, which are home to over 40 species including the protected Gopher tortoise.

A locals' secret spot, Boneyard Beach is a classic venue to study beach erosion with its towering driftwood oak trees as guests learn from their guide on how to protect coastal habitats. For history lovers, a field trip to Fort Cinch and Old Town combines a remarkably preserved historic fort, an untouched maritime forest and the richest marshland estuary on the Eastern Florida coast. For thrilling adventure through the Florida vegetation, the Egan's Creek Greenway field trip brings visitors into the heart of the natural world with its rich array of wildlife including alligators, snakes, marsh rabbits.

For a deeper trek into the beautiful Amelia Island scenery, guests can select the Explore More offering designed to their interests, whether it be planting sea oats with the resort Naturalist, chartering a boat to explore private waterways, or arranging a private tour of American Beach to see Florida's tallest sand dune.

The Ritz-Carlton, Amelia Island Ecology Field Trips begin at $300 per participant, including lunch or snack, beverage, and transportation. Half-day field trips depart the lobby at 9 a.m. and return to the resort at 12 p.m. Full-day field trips depart the lobby at 9 a.m., returning to the resort at 12 p.m. for lunch with free time until 3 p.m. and the afternoon on-site activity and daily synopsis.
