Todd English, one of the world’s most celebrated chefs, is renowned for his innovative Mediterranean cuisine and dynamic presence. His illustrious career has left an indelible mark on the modern culinary landscape.

A graduate of the prestigious Culinary Institute of America, English began his culinary journey at just 15 years old, honing his craft in renowned kitchens across New York and Italy. His passion and creativity led to the creation of iconic restaurants such as Olives, Figs, and blueZoo, which have earned international acclaim.

English's achievements include five James Beard Awards, including National Rising Star Chef and Best Chef in the Northeast. He is also the author of four critically acclaimed cookbooks and the host and producer of PBS's Food Trip with Todd English, which garnered multiple James Beard Awards and an Emmy nomination. His dynamic personality and expertise have made him a frequent guest on Top Chef, Iron Chef, and major national television programs.
