Her debut album, Hungover, has received acclaim from The New York Times and Rolling Stone. Her chart-topping hit “You Look Like You Love Me,” featuring Riley Green, earned her a CMA Award and solidified her status as one of country music’s most exciting new talents. Langley has toured with stars like Morgan Wallen, Cody Johnson, Luke Bryan, and Dierks Bentley, and continues to rise in 2025 as a featured act on Riley Green’s “Damn Country Music” arena tour and Morgan Wallen’s “I’m The Problem” stadium tour.

Special guest Kaia Soul, a singer, songwriter, and producer raised in the Hawaiian Islands and currently based in New York City, will open for Langley. Known for her smooth blend of R&B, pop, and soul, Kaia’s sound pairs soulful melodies with jazz-tinged grooves and deeply personal lyricism.

The Maui Songwriters Festival Summer Series kicks off next month with Texas-born singer-songwriter Randy Rogers, who will perform a complimentary show on Friday, June 20, at Alaloa Lounge, with Maui musician Matt Del Olmo opening. Details for the August 1 concert will be announced soon.
