

GLAMOUR

Travel

25 Best Romantic Weekend Getaways for Couples

Whether you're looking for snow or sun, we found the perfect spot for your couples vacation.

If you're in the market for a Valentine's Day gift they won't return, how about a romantic weekend getaway? You can head to the Southern US or the Caribbean for sunny, beach-friendly weather, the Northeast or West for prime ski and snowboarding season, or even European capitals during one of the most inexpensive times of year to travel there.

Don't save your vacation just for anniversaries; we give you full permission to celebrate your love whenever you feel like it. Plus, after years of disrupted plans for reasons we, ahem, don't need to get into, don't you and your partner deserve some quality alone time somewhere that's not your living room couch?

The first step is deciding what kind of vacation you're craving: Do you plan on hunkering down in the sheets all weekend? Are you ready to hit the pavement and explore a new city through its museums and restaurants? Or is your idea of a couples retreat just wiggling your toes in some warm, powder-soft sand? We've compiled some of our favorite locations around the world—from inexpensive locales to high-end resorts offering Valentine's Day specials—all of which are ideal for a quick couples vacation. So pack your best/>best/>best/ swimsuit (or puffer/jacket) and read on to find out which trip is for you...and yours.

The Ritz-Carlton New York, Central Park

50 Central Park South, New York, New York, 10019 I +1 212.308.9100 I ritzcarlton.com/centralpark

New York City

Courtesy of Ritz Carlton Central Park

Whether it's for the country's top hotels, restaurants, theater productions, or museums, a romantic trip to New York City is the place to wow your significant other. And if you can snag a hotel room with a view of Central Park, there is hardly a more iconic way to spend your vacation. For the ultimate in classic New York hospitality, grab a room at the storied Ritz-Carlton New York, Central Park. After its recent renovation, one of the city's most elegant (and centrally located) properties is once again welcoming guests for romantic sojourns. Plus, for Valentine's Day, the hotel is going all out: Not only has it set up a proposal package complete with a dedicated romance concierge, but it's also got plenty of experiences for those who may have already tied the knot (or, you know, don't want to). Guests can reserve a chocolate truffle and wine pairing; delight in an aphrodisiac tasting menu at on-site restaurant Contour; or even sip cocktails inspired by some of New York's greatest movie love stories, like Breakfast at Tiffany's or When Harry Met Sally.

Book Now

https://www.glamour.com/story/romantic-getaway-ideas